Editorial

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

As we approach the end of 2008, we would like to take this opportunity to wish you all the very best for 2009.

Many people across the world have celebrations at this time, and we hope that those are wonderful occasions for you and your families. For all of us, the end of a year and the start of a new one is a time for both reflection on the past and direction of the year ahead. Hopefully we will all be able to face the challenges ahead with wisdom, courage and a sense of humor.

Critical care will face challenging times in the near future with economic problems in many parts of the world. Critical care for children may be particularly challenging as health care services across the world struggle to cope with diminished budgets and increasing demand for services.

As we all strive towards the vision of providing critical care for children with life threatening illness or injury our concern is that WFPICCS should find ways of: supporting the development of pediatric critical care; facilitating the growth and development of research in pediatric critical care and supporting the work and development of all people who work in the setting of pediatric critical care.

Please help us in that endeavor, let us know your dreams, concerns and thoughts. We look forward to seeing you at the many events in pediatric critical care, and hearing from you whenever you feel the urge to communicate

On behalf of all WFPICCS members.

With best regards,

Andrew Argent
